

SURVIVORSHIP PROGRAM: TAKE OUR SURVEY!

With support from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Thriving Again, our new program to address the needs of young breast cancer survivors, is well under way. We recently launched a National Survivorship Survey for breast cancer survivors diagnosed at or before age 45. Take the survey today or forward it to someone you know to help shape our programming and for the chance to win an iPad. We've also hosted live roundtable discussions in New Jersey, Los Angeles, Atlanta, and Chicago as well as online discussions to get your valuable input on the most important issues young breast cancer survivors face. We will host additional online discussions in April. If you're interested in participating, or know someone who may be interested, please contact Program Coordinator Danna Averbook.
